

Residential doors

Last Updated Monday, 29 June 2009

Our PVCu residential doors are designed with the British climate in mind and are manufactured in accordance with the latest advances in door technology. With slender sightlines, steel reinforcing, high security hinges and a full range of moulded panel designs our residential doors are suitable for any application.

As well as the standard range of single opening doors we are also able to provide stable doors, where-by the two leafs can be interlocked and used as a single door.

All our residential doors are available in many different designs. To find out more about Residential door range please request a brochure or contact us on 01773 712001
